

ASIA-EUROPE COOPERATION ON LOW CARBON DEVELOPMENT

BACKGROUND

2015 Paris Agreement aims at achieving its goals by promoting low carbon development by all the parties. Considering the increasing potential of GHG emissions of Asian region, Asian region needs to plan and implement low carbon development policies. In this context, deploying low emission technologies such as renewables, encouraging public and private financing, and developing cooperation mechanisms under Article 6 are among those which must be secured along with necessary capacity building for needed countries. This event will provide some ideas on how Asia can address challenges ahead by sharing experiences and lessons from Europe and international organisations.

OBJECTIVE

This event aims at sharing experiences among the countries and related stakeholders to identify how to better realise low carbon development in Asia.
